PRESIDENT'S REPORT FOR THE MONTH OF DECEMBER 2010

The following is a list of activities that occurred in the office of the President for the month of December 2010.

- I attended a number of committee meetings including the Gaming Commission, hiring, and others as needed.
- The City of Negaunee has informed us of their support regarding the Airport Casino.
- On behalf of the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community, I wrote a letter of support for the United States USDA Forest Service Eastern Region, especially for the services of Jan Schultz, who worked with the Cedar Tree Institute to assist us in launching our Native Plant Restoration Initiative—The Zaagkii Project. It has been an extraordinary adventure which resulted in a newly constructed 33-foot greenhouse at our hatchery on Pequaming Road in Zeba. The Tribal Council is glad the dome is located near Zeba. There are issues which will be addressed next week in order to keep the growing season throughout the winter.
- I appointed Brigitte LaPointe to a Task Force in which TERO will be needed in the event we elect to build and operate a detention center. We will need to provide training programs to create job opportunities for Tribal members to work at this facility.
- I approved a $500 donation to the Ojibwa Community College for their Christmas party.
- The Governor has reviewed and approved a request received from the Office of President, which was made by Vice President William E. Emery, regarding promotional raffles held on the premises of the Casino. A pdf copy of this letter is available to council members, so we can make those super bowl raffles happen.

- I attended the Tribal Leaders meeting with President Obama which resulted in a number of issues. His administration has respected the government-to-government relationship and has been responsive to Tribal concerns. While the President conceded there was still more work to do, many administration officials emphasized the opportunity presented by the next two years of the administration and hopes for the second term. The President's commitment to nation-to-nation was evident in the senior staff that joined the twelve Tribal leaders. We called them the twelve disciples. Unfortunately we weren't chosen as one of those twelve disciples. The twelve disciples were able to meet with the President to discuss some concerns with Indian communities throughout the nation. The President hosted the meeting and was joined by three cabinet secretaries from: Health and Human Services, Interior, Justice department, five senior White House staff, including, senior advisor Valerie Jarrett, and three senior staff from the agency. We called him the President Chairman Black Eagle who is of the Crow Tribe and noted that the regional format of the meeting was a key acknowledgement of the different challenges and opportunities facing tribes throughout the nation. Some of the issues that came from the twelve disciples, or the twelve leaders, who were able to meet with the President, presented a range of key priorities including: creating a cabinet level position and elevate key officials who work in Indian County, for example: in the department of human services and the department of education. They asked the President to prioritize and issue an executive order reaffirming the nation-to-nation relationship that he features recognizing the trust obligations and that tribes should not be treated as programs, amend the consultation executive order to institutionalize the process of consultation regard accountability and measureable process from the department, and create a process from dispute resolution. He also signed the UN declaration on the rights of Indigenous Peoples, and we asked him to create a Presidential Tribal Nation Council. Chairwoman Diver of the Fond du Lac Band of Lake Superior Chippewa's echoed the concerns of other leaders in the meeting and noted that improving the relationship with the OM&B, Office of Management and Budget, was the number one concern. Even in tough budget times, tribes must be held harmless. She touched on public safety, the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, and Sacred sites.

- I also wrote a letter to Secretary Salazar of the Department of Interior, asking him to take prompt action on the Community's longstanding request for a two-part determination on the land located in Negaunee.

Respectfully submitted,
Warren C. Swartz, Jr., President

DECEMBER 2010 TREASURER'S REPORT

Activities Reported by the Treasurer, Eddy Edwards, for the month of December 2010. The Treasurer's report was given verbally and transcribed by the newsletter editor.

Today, I want to report about the Tribe's Annual Audit process which is currently underway. This audit begins at the end of the fiscal year, September 30th. We hire a very confident firm to come in and audit our gaming enterprises and our government operations. The primary purpose of an audit is to review our financial statements for reliability. The audit is conducted in accordance with auditing standards, and those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable insurance that the financial statements are free of material misstatements. The auditor will also look at the operations related to federal awards: specifically grants, how those grants are administered, and if we are following the rules of those grants. This is something that we do every year, and it is one of the most important documents of the Tribe. It summarizes all of our fiscal year statements and gives an opinion of those statements. Those statements are the responsibility of our senior management, and they provide an opinion about those statements. This is something that I wanted to inform the community about. This is an important document, and it is important for the Council to see the results of this audit, so that we can feel ensured that our financial statements are true and correct, and that our programs are being administered accordingly. Upon completion of this audit for fiscal year 2010, I will provide a report to the Council and to the Community.

Respectfully submitted,
Eddy Edwards, Treasurer

ANIN! We honor the greatness in you. Remember: "Indian Country Counts," "Our People, Our Nations, Our Future."

We continue to recognize the richness of Native American contributions, accomplishments, and sacrifices to the political, cultural, and economic life of Michigan and the United States.

On December 4th approximately 267 employees and guests enjoyed the annual Government Christmas Dinner Party held at the Big Bucks Bingo Hall. Larry Denomie, CEO, provided the entertainment for "The Tree of Christmas Fortune Trivia Give-away." Congratulations to Kristin Belair, Kim Hylton, Jennifer Misegan, and Heather Wood who were the winners of $500 each. Many thanks to the Christmas Party Task Force for all of their planning and work for a wonderful party!

We continue to have monthly meetings with our employee W.H.I.P.P. (Wellness, Health, Intervention, Prevention Program) Task Force, volunteers and our Blue Cross representative/Employee Benefits Agency. It is never too late to encourage positive lifestyle changes that will help us live longer, healthier, happier lives.

The Task Force and volunteers provided healthy luncheons in November and December, and the "Maintain, Don't Gain Challenge" for the holiday seasons, November 8, 2010 through January 3, 2011. Congratulations to our employees: 119 weighed in at Baraga and Marquette, and 80 weighed out. The "New Year, New You Weight Loss Challenge for 2011" will begin the week of January 10th through January 14th. It is also not too late to join the "Walk and Talk" indoor walking program from November 29th through April 8th at the KBOCC gym. Thank you to the KBIC Youth Program, KBIC Diabetes Program and the WHIPP Task Force! Be watching for special events/healthful information every month from the WHIPP Task Force. The KBIC Department of Health & Human Services Winter 2011 Quarterly Community Events calendar is now available.

There has been a decision from Circuit Judge Donald E. Shelton on November 5th to grant Kennecott's motion to transfer the hearing from Ann Arbor to Ingham County Circuit Court. The Judge did deny Kennecott's motion to dismiss the case.

Miigwech and our appreciation to all of our brave, courageous members and friends who have been taking care of Migi zii wa sin throughout the ages.

Now is the time to tell/write your elected officials and everyone that the short term benefits of the proposed mine are not worth the harmful long term effects on our health, rivers, Great Lakes, woods, and wild places due to the great potential for acid mine drainage. Please call me or write if you would like to review the National Wildlife Federation's DVD "Mining Madness, Water Wars: The Great Lakes in the Balance."

2010 NATIVE VOTE—EVERY VOTE COUNTS: The KBIC and the NCAI (National Congress of American Indians) encourage you to exercise your right to vote in all elections! We urge you to get your family and friends registered to vote if they are not already. With the heightened political participation of Native people, Indian Country has become an increasingly powerful voting block. We have made a visible difference in national, state, and local elections. Congratulations to Violet Friisvall Ayres, re-elected as Associate Judge, and to Fred Dakota, Elizabeth Mayo, Mike LaFernier, and Toni Minton on their re-elections to the Tribal Council.

Remember to continue to pray for, honor, and remember all of our veterans, service men and women, and their families. Also remember those who are ill, all who have lost loved ones in the last year, and our economic struggles. Let us be thankful for our beautiful area, and we pray for peace in the world, good health, and happiness.

USDA Offers Conservation Funding to Organic Producers

Agricultural producers who are organically certified or are transitioning to organic production are eligible for conservation financial assistance through the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Organic Initiative. In Michigan, just over $1 million in financial assistance is available in for producers who apply by March 4, 2011.

"The Organic Initiative allows organic producers to address their conservation concerns without having to compete with non-organic producers for financial assistance. Producers interested in utilizing this program should contact their local office as soon as possible to start the application process," said Garry Lee, state conservationist for the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service.

Fiscal year (FY) 2011 marks the third year of the USDA's Organic Initiative that reserves conservation financial assistance for producers to plan and implement conservation practices that address natural resource concerns in ways that are consistent with organic production. For example, organic producers may use the funding to plant cover crops, establish integrated pest management plans, or implement nutrient management systems consistent with organic certification standards.

Eligible producers include those certified through USDA's National Organic Program, those transitioning to certified organic production, and those who meet organic standards but are exempt from certification because their gross annual organic sales are less than $5,000. In FY 2010, NRCS obligated nearly $24 million through the Organic Initiative to help producers implement conservation practices.

Under Organic Initiative contracts, producers are paid 75 percent of the cost for the organic conservation measures they implement. Beginning, limited resource, and socially disadvantaged producers are paid 90 percent. The program provides up to $20,000 per year per person or legal entity, with a maximum total of $80,000 over six years.

Producers interested in applying for Organic Initiative funding must submit applications through their local NRCS Service Center. For more information about the USDA Organic Initiative including contact information for local offices, visit the NRCS-Michigan Web site at www.mi.nrcs.usda.gov.

NRCS is celebrating 75 years helping people help the land. Since 1935, the NRCS conservation delivery system has advanced a unique partnership with state and local governments and private landowners delivering conservation based on specific, local conservation needs, while accommodating state and national interests.

Asian Carp Update

Image credit: Nancy Stone/ Chicago Tribune

Seven carp species that are native to Asia have been introduced into the United States: bighead carp, black carp, grass carp, silver carp, common carp, goldfish, and crucian carp. In the 1970's, certain Asian carp were introduced to fish rearing ponds to control blooms of algae (bighead and silver carp are filter feeders, straining microorganisms including algae out of the water). During flood events in the 1990's in the Lower Mississippi River, some carp escaped the ponds, and they have since grown in population and have rapidly ascended the Mississippi and Illinois Rivers towards the Great Lakes.

There is major concern by fisheries experts that bighead and silver carp have potential to negatively interact with important commercial and sport fish species in the Great Lakes, such as walleye, yellow perch and lake whitefish. If Asian Carp enter the Great Lakes and expand, they may disrupt the food chain that supports native species and negatively impact and change the Great Lakes Fishery as we currently know it.

Bighead and silver carp are quickly spreading to lakes, rivers, and streams south and west of Lake Michigan but have yet to be documented in the Great Lakes. A single Asian Carp was captured above an electrical barrier in 2009, and DNA evidence collected through water samples in the Illinois River (which connects the Mississippi River to Lake Michigan through the Des Plaines River and a series of artificial and natural waterways in the Chicago area), indicate that Asian carp are threatening to find their way into Lake Michigan. This is a major concern since Asian carp are well-suited to the climate of the Great Lakes Region which is similar to that of their native region in Asia, and these carp prefer large rivers and lakes.

Map of Chicago Area Waterway, indicating electrical barrier (red circle) and areas upstream of barrier where Asian Carp DNA was detected through water sampling methods (positive DNA test reaches of stream indicated in red).

Officials from around the Great Lakes have developed action plans and steering committees to deal with the threat of Asian carp. Some proposed response actions include intensified monitoring and sampling for Asian carp, construction of new barriers in the Illinois River system, the undertaking of a comprehensive study of the Chicago waterway system to define where and how many Asian carp are in the area, and plans to seek and eradicate as many Asian carp as possible in the system.

In November of 2010, the Michigan Asian Carp Prevention Workshop was held at Michigan State University in Lansing, Michigan, and representatives from the Federal Government, State Natural Resources Departments, Tribes, and Universities discussed ways to further control and monitor spread of Asian carp and ways to educate and outreach to the public in the event Asian carp do invade the Great Lakes. All people who reside around the Great Lakes and who cherish and utilize the fisheries resources of the region are asked to be vigilant and report suspect Asian Carp observations to local fisheries professionals. Please do your part and help monitor and slow the spread of Asian carp!

Feel free to contact the KBIC Natural Resources Department in the event you encounter what you suspect is an Asian carp. (906) 524-5757

What to Do If You Think You Have Found an Asian Carp

Step 1: Asian Carp Identification

There are seven species of carps native to Asia that have been introduced to the United States, but only four types that are considered a threat to the Great Lakes: bighead, silver, black and grass.

Think you may have found an Asian carp that needs to be reported? Follow these helpful identification tips before calling state personnel.

Identification Tips:

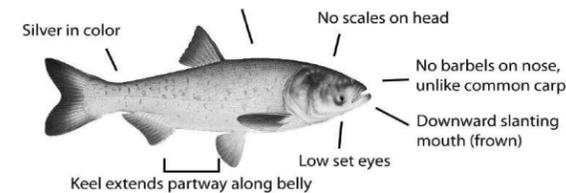

- Make sure you have the right carp! There is also common carp which is not currently threatening the Great Lakes. The common carp is not an Asian carp. They have a small mouth relative to body size and are brown in color with large scales. If in doubt, call your state personnel!

- Grass carp closely resembles black carp in form (see picture). The major difference is grass carp are nearly white in color.

- Look for hybrids, fish that might exhibit characteristics of both the silver and bighead species, and report them.

Step 2: Contact Agency Personnel in Your State

- If you think you have found an Asian carp, take a picture of the fish if possible. The best angle is of the fish laid out flat. Try to include the whole fish, nose to tail, in the shot.
- Know the location of where you caught the fish. What river or lake were you fishing in? What is the nearest town? What county are you in?
- Immediately contact the appropriate agency personnel for the state you are in. If an email address is provided, email a photograph of the fish in question as well as call.

New York	Bill Culligan	(716)-366-0228	New York State Dept. of Environmental Conservation

Step 3: Preserving & Transporting the Fish

- If state personnel would like to examine the fish, put it on ice or place in a plastic bag.
- Do NOT keep a live Asian carp in your possession.
- Do NOT travel across state lines with an Asian carp in your possession.
- Do NOT move an Asian carp to another body of water even if it is dead.

Step 4: Be Knowledgeable About Asian Carp

Before you go out fishing check the following United States Geological Survey links to find out where confirmed Asian carp sightings have occurred:

- Bighead carp - <http://nas2.er.usgs.gov/viewer/omap.aspx?SpeciesID=551>
- Silver carp - <http://nas2.er.usgs.gov/viewer/omap.aspx?SpeciesID=549>

HALVERSON RECEIVES HONORS BAND ACHIEVEMENT

KBIC Tribal member, Sheila Halverson, has achieved the opportunity to play in the Honors Band. Sheila was chosen from a number of students throughout the U.P. of Michigan for a position with the Honors Band. The Honors Band performs in the Negaunee High School auditorium where special events take place. She will not only participate in challenging music but will have the opportunity to meet new people.

To receive this fantastic opportunity, Sheila had to prepare an essay for her band director on why she wanted to be in Honors Band. She then had to choose an arrangement to record which was sent to the judges who decided just the right chair to place her.

An individual who achieves Honors Band is selected because of their great talent, standing out above their fellow classmates. These achievers have pure dedication to their music.

Sheila has participated in band for seven years and plays the Saxophone. She also plays the piano, native flute, standard flute, and a little guitar. Sheila has expressed the desire to begin violin lessons soon as well. Sheila stated, "This whole Honors Band experience has been a real great experience for me. It makes me feel real special to represent our Tribe by the music I play and by making my family proud of me."

Sheila is in the tenth grade at Baraga High School and is the daughter of Michelle Eilola and Paul Halverson.

☒ Uranium is a naturally-occurring element found throughout the environment.

☒ Uranium is found in some parts of the Jacobsville Sandstone bedrock layer in the Upper Peninsula, and it is believed that this may be the cause of some elevated uranium levels in water wells located in this formation.

☒ At high levels of exposure uranium has the potential to cause adverse health effects such as kidney toxicity and an increased risk of cancer.

☒ The amount of uranium varies from place to place, the only way to know if you have elevated uranium levels is to have your water tested.

Dear Tribal Community:

We would like to introduce the American Indian Health Web portal <http://americanindianhealth.nlm.nih.gov/>. The portal is designed to bring together health and medical resources pertinent to the American Indian population including policies, consumer health information for everyday people, ways to access healthcare, and research. This site is designed for health professionals who work with American Indians by providing them with information and tools they can use. It also has easy-to-understand information to help American Indian peoples learn about their health problems and to help them live healthier.

The Web portal has four sections: Health Topics, People and Traditions, Programs and Services, and Research and Data. The information on the health topics section is designed for all ages, including selections for children and elders. Links are provided to an assortment of documents, Web sites, databases, and other resources.

There are also links to sites with stories of Indian people and their experiences with health problems and how they stay well. Many of these stories are in audio or video format. In addition, there are links to information about research and data suitable for a variety of users. Pre-formulated searches for different health topics link to the latest in medical research articles involving health and disease in American Indians and are provided from the NLM PubMed/MEDLINE database. Often it is possible to access and read entire journal articles through these links.

The American Indian Health Web portal is sponsored by the National Library of Medicine. Celebrate National Heart Month

February in National Heart Month and it is not only the season of love but is also the time to learn about the dangers of heart disease. You should make it a point to reviewing some educational tips to help celebrate National Heart Month.

1. Be heart smart—know your cholesterol and triglyceride levels. Other major factors in determining your heart health are: your blood pressure, waist size, and body mass index. If you haven't had a recent check up with your family physician for some time, now is the time to schedule that appointment!
2. A definite risk factor when determining the health of your heart is smoking. Studies show that smoking can not only cause respiratory problems and lung cancer, but it is also a major cause of heart disease. If you smoke, whether on a regular basis or socially, why not make National Heart Month (February) your reason to quit!
3. The two most important things you can do for your heart is exercise along with healthy eating. You will be on your way to a healthier you if you make efforts to reduce sugar and fat from your diet, and take that brisk walk every day, whether it be in the morning, at lunch break, or in the evening.
4. A definite killer is stress, and it is almost impossible to eliminate all stress from our lives. However, the main cause of so many ailments that affect everyone of us today is stress. Whether you pray, meditate, read, or write you need to find an outlet to will help reduce your stress levels now!

Let's make the National Health Month a reason to make the daily commitments to a heart healthy lifestyle. No smoking, exercise regularly, make good food choice, and practice daily stress mechanisms.

Celebrate National Wear Red Day® on Friday, February 4, 2011 or any other day.

Heart disease is still the No. 1 killer of women, taking the life of 1 in 3 women each year.

This means women just like you — mothers, sisters, friends — are dying at the rate of one per minute. In fact, in the time it takes to read this, another woman will die from heart disease.

It simply does not have to be that way. At the American Heart Association, we work every day to fund research and fight this killer so more women can be saved. But we need your help.

This National Wear Red Day, join our mission to ensure we never have to deny research that could save a woman's life. Help raise the funds needed for lifesaving educational programs and the development of new treatments to fight heart disease.

On February 4, 2011, Make It Your Mission to Save Lives. Together we can make a difference. Celebrate National Wear Red Day.
